Roger has worked with GRObio as a Business Development Lead for several years. He has a rare combination of experience from drug development to alliance management across companies large and small that make him an excellent asset particularly for companies seeking early-stage growth. He has made invaluable contributions to our business development, corporate strategy and market assessment efforts. He has a vast network across verticals within the pharmaceutical industry, particularly around the Boston biotech ecosystem, that make him an ideal partner for building key relationships. Roger also provides a flexible working model that adjusts to a company's evolving needs. I highly recommend working with Roger if given the opportunity.
