To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to provide this letter of recommendation for Daniel J. Sheehan, whom I had the privilege of working with during his tenure as Chief Information Officer at Puritan Medical Products. In my role as an Advisory Board Member, I observed Dan's leadership, strategic vision, and ability to translate technology initiatives into meaningful business outcomes.

Dan joined Puritan during a period of significant growth and operational complexity and quickly established himself as a trusted advisor to the executive team and Board. He successfully built and led the company's technology function, aligning it with Puritan's broader business objectives while ensuring scalability, resilience, and regulatory compliance. Dan also has a strong ability to connect technology investments to tangible business results. He made several impactful contributions to the company including a Quality Management System, enterprise-wide business analytics, and many infrastructure and cybersecurity initiatives.

His professionalism, integrity, and calm, decisive leadership style earned him the respect of both peers and subordinates. Dan consistently brought a forward-looking perspective to the business. He collaborated with the leadership team to explore and implement advanced analytics and emerging technologies, including AI-driven initiatives, to improve operational efficiency and support revenue growth.

Dan would be an asset to any organization.

Sincerely,
