

As founder / CEO of Therapy Lab, a mental health services platform based in L.A., one of my best early decisions was to engage Emily Christy as fractional CFO/strategy consultant. She came highly recommended by two fellow founders (in healthcare, restaurants) and impressed from the start. Emily hit the ground running with impactful collaboration, and easy integration into our team, that led to breakthroughs in strategic thinking and planning for the future. She created financial models that took complex information (healthcare services is not simple!) and provided a map of our future that is still meaningful, over five years later. Emily added value with her extensive network of financial and legal experts; she knew when and how to connect us to the right attorneys to assist with trademark, corporate structure, and tech IP. I consider Emily a trusted advisor and look forward to hiring her again in the future.
